SUPERIOR COURT OF NEW JERSEY
LAW DIVISION: ESSEX COUNTY

Civil Action

Docket No.

CLASS ACTION COMPLAINT and JURY DEMAND

Plaintiff Edward Scibilia, individually and on behalf of those similarly situated, by way of Class Action Complaint against Defendant Firstsource Advantage, LLC, and John Does 1 to 10, state:

NATURE OF THE CASE

1. This is a putative class action arising from Defendant, Firstsource Advantage, LLC's unlawful disclosure of private financial information to third parties without the prior consent of the consumers.

2. The Fair Debt Collection Practices Act prohibits the disclosure of information to third parties to prevent identity theft and invasions of privacy. As the National Consumer Law Center put it eloquently:

As the world has gone digital, consumers' records, both financial and otherwise, are increasingly vulnerable to exposure. Transactions that were once fleeting, recorded only on paper and filed in some cabinet, or perhaps reduced to microfiche, are now but mouse-clicks away from duplication and dissemination.

Unregulated databases, escalating numbers of mergers, and the proliferation of information brokers—private investigators who specialize in obtaining computerized records—all threaten privacy. As was noted in Congress, “databases of personal identifiable information are increasingly prime targets of hackers, identity thieves, rogue employees, and other criminals, including organized and sophisticated criminal operations.”

The internet raises particular privacy concerns, as information sent over the World Wide Web may pass through dozens of different computer systems, each of which can snatch and hold the information in its coffers. In addition, website owners can track consumers' online behavior and gather information about their preferences, often without their knowledge. Web bugs, or tiny graphics that are put into web pages and e-mails, can monitor who views the information. Clickstream data can tell website owners which pages of the site were viewed and for how long. “Cookies” dropped onto a computer may not identify the user by name but do identify the particular computer, which allows an interested party to assemble a great deal of information about that computer's user.

Financial information is especially sensitive, able to reveal not just a consumer's standard of living and debt load, but also personal preferences and lifestyle details ranging from books bought to prescriptions purchased. In California Bankers Ass'n v. Shultz, Justice Powell pointed out that “[f]inancial transactions can reveal much about a person's activities, associations, and beliefs.” Justice Douglas elaborated further:

A checking account . . . [m]ay well record a citizen's activities, opinion, and beliefs as fully as transcripts of his telephone conversations . . . In a sense a person is defined by the checks he writes. By examining them the agents get to know his doctors, lawyers, creditors, political allies, social connections, religious affiliation, educational interests, the papers and magazines he reads, and so on ad infinitum.

The same can be said of credit card charges, debit purchases, and online transactions. Forty years later, the details of these revealing consumer activities are easily collected, compiled, analyzed, and accessed, and thus have created a lucrative market for their trade. One industry leader among data aggregation companies, Acxiom, advertises that it has data on 2.5 billion consumers. Acxiom claims that one of its products covering American consumers has data on 250 million consumers, offering data not just on individual demographics, but also household characteristics, financial information, life events, major purchases, and behavior, all of which allows for targeted marketing. Experian reports that it manages data on more than 300 million consumers and 126 million households, while Equifax claims a database of over 115 million U.S. households distributed over 150 different segment groups, which can be used to predict behavior. In 2017, Equifax suffered a data breach that involved the personal data on nearly half the United States population being stolen, a breach that a Congressional committee found to have been “entirely preventable.” In 2014, the Federal Trade Commission filed a complaint against another data broker that allegedly bought the payday loan applications of consumers and then sold the information to marketers with no legitimate need for it, leading some scammers among them to debit millions from the consumers’ accounts.

National Consumer Law Center, Fair Credit Reporting (9th ed. 2017) § 18.1, updated at www.nclc.org/library (footnotes omitted and alterations in original) (attached as Exhibit A).

3. For example, in enacting the FDCPA, Congress found “abundant evidence of the use of abusive, deceptive, and unfair debt collection practices by many debt collectors. Abusive debt collection practices contribute to the number of personal bankruptcies, to marital instability, to the loss of jobs, and to invasions of individual privacy. 15 U.S.C. § 1692(a). See also Douglass v. Convergent Outsourcing, 765 F.3d 299, 303-04 (3d Cir. 2014) (“The disclosure of [the consumer’s] account number raises these privacy concerns. The account number is a core piece of information pertaining to [the consumer’s] status as a debtor and Convergent’s debt collection effort. Disclosed to the public, it could be used to expose her financial predicament. Because Convergent’s disclosure implicates core privacy concerns, it cannot be deemed benign.”).

4. Despite the Douglass ruling, Defendant continues to misuse and unlawfully disclose private financial information about consumers to third-parties.

5. Defendant's disclosure of sensitive financial information to third parties is an act consistent with a course of conduct and practice which was either designed to, or had as its natural consequence, an attempt to obtain money from consumers through the use of false, misleading, deceptive, abusive, unfair, unconscionable, and unlawful conduct prohibited by common law and statutory law including, but not limited to, the Consumer Fraud Act ("CFA"), N.J.S.A. 56:8-1, et seq., and the Fair Debt Collection Practices Act ("FDCPA"), 15 U.S.C. §§ 1692, et seq.

6. Defendant is subject to strict liability under the FDCPA for the prohibited communication with third parties "without the prior consent of the consumer given directly to the debt collector . . . in connection with the collection of [the] debt, with any person other than the consumer" 15 U.S.C. § 1692c(b) and for violating 15 U.S.C. § 1692d(3).

7. Thus, Plaintiff bring this class action for damages against Defendant arising from Defendant's unlawful disclosure of sensitive and confidential personal identifying and financial information, when attempting to collect debts from New Jersey consumers.

8. Defendant is subject to strict liability under the FDCPA for communicating with third parties "without the prior consent of the consumer given directly to the debt collector . . . in connection with the collection of [the] debt, with any person other than the consumer"

JURISDICTION AND VENUE

9. This Court has jurisdiction to entertain this matter pursuant to 15 U.S.C. § 1692k(d) and 28 U.S.C. § 1331.

10. Venue is proper in Essex County because Defendant regularly conducts business there, including the collection of debts against New Jersey residents residing in Essex County.

PARTIES

11. Plaintiff, Edward Scibilia ("Scibilia"), is a natural person.

12. “Plaintiff” refers to Scibilia.

13. At all times relevant to this lawsuit, Plaintiff was a citizen of the State of New Jersey.

14. Defendant, Firstsource Advantage, LLC (“Defendant” or “Firstsource”) is a collection agency with an office located at 205 Bryant Woods South, Amherst, New York 14228.

15. Defendants John Does 1 to 10 are natural persons and/or business entities all of whom reside or are located within the United States and personally created, instituted and, with knowledge that such practices were contrary to law, acted consistent with and oversaw policies and procedures used by the employees of Defendant that are the subject of this Complaint. Those defendants personally control the illegal acts, policies, and practices utilized by Defendant and, therefore, are personally liable for all of the wrongdoing alleged in this Complaint. Those fictitious names of individuals and businesses alleged for the purpose of substituting names of defendants whose identity will be disclosed in discovery and should be made parties to this action.

16. Some or all of John Does 1-10 set the policies and practices complained of herein.

17. Some or all of John Does 1-10 were actively engaged in the practices complained of herein.

18. In this pleading, “Defendants” in the plural refers to all Defendants.

FACTUAL ALLEGATIONS

A. Allegations Regarding Defendant’s Practices Generally

19. Firstsource regularly collects or attempts to collect debts that are past due.

20. Firstsource regularly collects or attempts to collect debts allegedly owed to others which were incurred primarily for personal, family or household purposes.

21. Firstsource is in the business of collecting debts or alleged debts of natural persons which arise from transactions which are primarily for personal, family, or household purposes.

22. The alleged receivables associated with the debts were assigned to Firstsource for the purpose of collection.

23. Firstsource uses the mails, telephone, the internet and other instruments of interstate commerce in engaging in the business of collecting defaulted debts or alleged debts of natural persons which arise from transactions which are primarily for personal, family, or household purposes.

24. Firstsource is a collection agency.

B. Plaintiff Scibilia

25. Firstsource has asserted that Scibilia allegedly incurred or owed a certain financial obligation arising out of a personal account.

26. The debt arose from one or more transactions which were primarily for Scibilia's personal, family or household purposes.

27. This account was assigned to Firstsource for collection.

28. Firstsource contends that the account is past due and in default.

29. The account was past due and in default at the time it was placed with or assigned to Firstsource for collection.

30. In an attempt to collect the Debt, Firstsource mailed a collection letter to Scibilia on April 28, 2020 ("4/28/20 Letter"), June 9, 2020 ("6/9/2020 Letter") and July 9, 2020 ("7/9/2020 Letter").

31. A true copy of the 4/28/20 Letter, 6/9/2020 Letter and the 7/9/2020 Letter, but with redactions, is attached as Exhibit B.

32. Scibilia received and reviewed the 4/28/20 Letter, 6/9/2020 Letter and the 7/9/2020 Letter.

33. Upon information and belief, the 4/28/20 Letter, 6/9/2020 Letter and the 7/9/2020 Letter were mailed using a third-party letter vendor.

34. Scibilia never provided consent to Defendant to communicate to third parties regarding his debt.

35. By using a letter vendor, Defendant has recklessly disclosed Scibilia's personal identifying information and private information about his debt to a third party without Scibilia's prior consent.

36. Defendant unlawfully disclosed information about Scibilia's debt including the account numbers associated with the debt and the alleged balance due.

37. The FDCPA prohibits a debt collector from communicating with third parties "without the prior consent of the consumer given directly to the debt collector . . . in connection with the collection of any debt, with any person other than the consumer, his attorney, a consumer reporting agency if otherwise permitted by law, the creditor, the attorney of the creditor, or the attorney of the debt collector ."¹

38. The FDCPA also prohibits "[t]he publication of a list of consumers who allegedly refuse to pay debts"²

39. Unlawfully communicating with a third party letter vendor regarding Plaintiff's Debt violates the FDCPA because it is impermissible communication under sections 1692c(b) and

1692d(3) which has the potential to cause harm to a consumer.³

40. Firstsource used the same procedures it used in sending the Firstsource Letters⁴ to Plaintiff when sending the same and/or similar letters to numerous other New Jersey consumers.

41. During the proposed class period, Firstsource sent letters the same or similar to the Firstsource Letters to numerous New Jersey consumers in an attempt to collect a debt.

42. It is Firstsource's policy and practice to unlawfully communicate and convey private and sensitive information about consumers with third parties by using third party vendors to send written collection communications in attempts to collect consumer debts.

43. Upon information and belief, Firstsource published a list of debtors, including Plaintiff, that allegedly refuse to pay debts.

CLASS ACTION ALLEGATIONS

44. Plaintiff brings this action individually and as a class action on behalf of all others similarly situated pursuant to Rule 4:32 of the New Jersey Rules of Court.

45. Subject to discovery and further investigation which may require Plaintiff to modify the following class definition at the time Plaintiff moves for class certification, Plaintiff seeks certification of a class initially defined as follows:

Class: All natural persons residing in State of New Jersey whose information was disclosed by Defendant to a third party on or after April 28, 2015.

FDCPA Subclass: All natural persons residing in the State of New Jersey, to whom Defendant sent a collection letter; which letter (a) was dated within one year prior to April 28, 2021; (b) was seeking to collect a consumer debt; and (c) was sent using a third party letter vendor.

³ See Hunstein v. Preferred Collection & Mgmt. Servs., __ F.3d __, 2021 U.S. App. LEXIS 11648 (11th Cir. 2021) (communicating with third party letter vendor violated the FDCPA).

⁴ "FirstSource Letters" refers to the 4/28/20 Letter, 6/9/2020 Letter and the 7/9/2020 Letter.

46. Plaintiff seeks to recover statutory damages, actual damages, and attorney's fees and costs on behalf of himself and all class members under the claims asserted herein.

47. The Class for whose benefit this action is brought is so numerous that joinder of all members is impracticable.

48. There are questions of law and fact common to the members of the Class that predominate over questions affecting only individuals.

49. A class action is superior to other available methods for the fair and efficient adjudication of this controversy since joinder of all members is impracticable. A class action will cause an orderly and expeditious administration of the claims of the Class and will foster economies of time, effort and expense by avoiding thousands of individual suits that will be based on the same legal theories that can be resolved in a single proceeding.

50. Plaintiff's claim is typical of the claims of the members of the Class. They are a member of the Class.

51. The questions of law and/or fact common to the members of the Class predominate over any questions affecting only individual members.

52. Plaintiff does not have interests antagonistic to those of the Class.

53. The Class, of which Plaintiff is a member, are readily identifiable. The Defendant has records of each account.

54. Plaintiff will fairly and adequately protect the interests of the Class, and have retained competent counsel experienced in the prosecution of consumer litigation. Proposed Class Counsel have investigated and identified potential claims in the action; have a great deal of experience in handling class actions, other complex litigation, and claims of the type asserted in this action.

55. The prosecution of separate actions by individual members of the Class would run the risk of inconsistent or varying adjudications, which would establish incompatible standards of conduct for the Defendant in this action or the prosecution of separate actions by individual members of the class would create the risk that adjudications with respect to individual members of the class would as a practical matter be dispositive of the interests of the other members not parties to the adjudications or substantially impair or impede their ability to protect their interests. Prosecution as a class action will eliminate the possibility of repetitious litigation.

56. Plaintiff does not anticipate any difficulty in the management of this litigation.

FIRST COUNT
DECLARATORY JUDGMENT AND INJUNCTIVE RELIEF FOR THE CLASS

57. Plaintiff repeats and realleges all prior allegations as if set forth at length herein.

59. Plaintiff suffered ascertainable loss from Defendant's CFA violations.

60. Plaintiff therefore has standing to seek injunctive and other equitable relief under the CFA, at N.J.S.A. 56:8-19, and the FDCPA.

- b. Granting a permanent injunction against the Defendant, pursuant to the CFA, at N.J.S.A. 56:8-19, and the FDCPA prohibiting them from the disclosure of consumer's information;

WHEREFORE, as to Count Two, Plaintiff, on behalf of himself and the putative Class members, hereby requests a Judgment against Defendant,

- e. For pre-judgment and post-judgment interest; and
- f. For such other and further relief as the Court deems equitable and just.

THIRD COUNT
NEGLIGENCE ON BEHALF OF THE CLASS

70. Plaintiff repeats and realleges all prior allegations as if set forth at length herein.

74. The Plaintiff and others have suffered a compensable loss arising from the disclosure of their protected private and financial information.

75. The Class has likewise suffered a compensable loss arising from the disclosure of their protected private and financial information.

WHEREFORE, as to Count Three, Plaintiff, on behalf of himself and the putative Class members, hereby requests a Judgment against Defendant,

- a. Granting class certification of the Class under R. 4:32-1(b)(3);
- b. A money judgment for compensatory damages based on the Defendant's disclosure of the Plaintiff and Class' private information;
- c. For attorney's fees, litigation expenses and costs in connection with this action;
- d. For pre-judgment and post-judgment interest; and
- e. For such other and further relief as the Court deems equitable and just.

FOURTH COUNT

77. Defendant invaded the privacy of Plaintiff by unreasonable publication of private facts.

79. Expert testimony is not required to establish that the disclosure of confidential financial information invaded a person's privacy.

80. By publishing the private financial information of the Plaintiff and the Class, Defendant damaged them by exposing their private information to persons who lacked any right or entitlement to know their private financial information.

82. The Class has likewise suffered a compensable loss arising from the invasion of their privacy.

The Fair Credit Reporting Act (FCRA) protects a limited segment of financial privacy, by regulating consumer reporting agencies (CRAs) that collect credit information about consumers, those who provide information to the CRAs, and those who seek information from CRAs. However, many consumer financial transactions do not fall within the FCRA, and other sources of privacy law must be examined to see if they can protect personal financial data from those who seek to acquire and exploit it. Discussed below are some federal statutes, state statutes, common law tort claims, and identity theft laws that may serve to shield consumers' economic conduct.

As the world has gone digital, consumers' records, both financial and otherwise, are increasingly vulnerable to exposure. Transactions that were once fleeting, recorded only on paper and filed in some cabinet, or perhaps reduced to microfiche, are now but mouse-clicks away from duplication and dissemination.

Unregulated databases, escalating numbers of mergers, and the proliferation of information brokers—private investigators who specialize in obtaining computerized records—all threaten privacy. As was noted in Congress, “databases of personal identifiable information are increasingly prime targets of hackers, identity thieves, rogue employees, and other criminals, including organized and sophisticated criminal operations.”¹

The internet raises particular privacy concerns, as information sent over the World Wide Web may pass through dozens of different computer systems, each of which can snatch and hold the information in its coffers. In addition, website owners can track consumers' online behavior and gather information about their preferences, often without their knowledge. Web bugs, or tiny graphics that are put into web pages and e-mails, can monitor who views the information. Clickstream data can tell website owners which pages of the site were viewed and for how long. “Cookies” dropped onto a computer may not identify the user by name but do identify the particular computer, which allows an interested party to assemble a great deal of information about that computer's user.²

Financial information is especially sensitive, able to reveal not just a consumer's standard of living and debt load, but also personal preferences and lifestyle details ranging from books bought to prescriptions purchased. In California Bankers Ass'n v. Shultz,³ Justice Powell pointed out that “[f]inancial transactions can reveal much about a person's activities, associations, and beliefs.” Justice Douglas elaborated further:

A checking account . . . [m]ay well record a citizen's activities, opinion, and beliefs as fully as transcripts of his telephone conversations . . . In a sense a person is defined by the checks he writes. By examining them the agents get to know his doctors, lawyers, creditors, political allies, social connections, religious affiliation, educational interests, the papers and magazines he reads, and so on ad infinitum.⁴

The same can be said of credit card charges, debit purchases, and online transactions. Forty years later, the details of these revealing consumer activities are easily collected, compiled, analyzed, and accessed, and thus have created a lucrative market for their trade. One industry leader among data aggregation companies, Acxiom, advertises that it has data on 2.5 billion consumers.⁵ Acxiom claims that one of its products covering American consumers has data on 250 million consumers, offering data not just on individual demographics, but also household characteristics, financial information, life events, major purchases, and behavior, all of which allows for targeted marketing.⁶ Experian reports that it manages data on more than 300 million consumers and 126 million households,⁷ while Equifax claims a database of over 115 million U.S. households distributed over 150 different segment groups, which can be used to predict behavior.⁸ In 2017, Equifax suffered a data breach that involved the personal data on nearly half the United States population being stolen, a breach that a Congressional committee found to have been “entirely preventable.”⁹ In 2014, the Federal Trade Commission filed a complaint against another data broker that allegedly bought the payday loan applications of consumers and then sold the information to marketers with no legitimate need for it, leading some scammers among them to debit millions from the consumers' accounts.¹⁰

Marketers are intensely interested in consumers' online and other behavior so they can pinpoint consumers for advertising.¹¹ Businesses want to learn as much about consumers as possible.¹² Furthermore, since the 9/11 attacks, the federal government, specifically the National Security Agency, has voraciously sought data about individuals both inside and outside the United States.¹³ Political groups seek out and aggregate information about consumers to assign them “persuasion scores” that purport to measure how likely that consumer is to vote for or against a particular candidate.¹⁴ Even the mundane task of grocery shopping is considered sufficiently informative that supermarkets use “loyalty cards” to track every item purchased by every cardholder, and they are free to sell that information to anyone who might be interested. There is a near insatiable hunger to learn how consumers get and spend their money.

Notwithstanding the sensitivity embedded in a person's financial choices, they are, for the most part, fair game for trade. While federal law protects against disclosure of video rental preferences,¹⁵ cable viewing preferences,¹⁶ medical records,¹⁷ and student records,¹⁸ it does not yet prevent financial or other institutions from selling their customers' Social Security numbers, account balances, maturity dates, securities holdings, or other information to private entities.¹⁹ Consequently, consumers remain largely ignorant of the trafficking in such personal information.

In 2014, the FTC conducted an in-depth study of nine data brokers that collect personal information about consumers and then sell it for marketing and other purposes, and issued an extensive and often critical report.²⁰ In addition to describing the processes by which data brokers gather and use consumer information, the agency called for Congress to "consider enacting legislation that would enable consumers to learn of the existence and activities of data brokers and provide consumers with reasonable access to information about them held by these entities."²¹ In effect, this is a call for Congress to extend some of the basic rights provided by the FCRA to data that falls outside that act. However, there could be downsides to such legislation to regulate data brokers, such as preemption of stronger state laws and potential impairment of the FCRA if brokers are covered under both that Act and the proposed law.

Though the FCRA limits some disclosures by private parties of consumer financial information, it does not give consumers the right to prohibit a CRA from disclosing accurate, nonobsolete information to those deemed to have a permissible purpose.²² Furthermore, while some data warehouses fall within the definition of a CRA,²³ others that sell their records for reasons other than those included in the definition of a CRA may evade the FCRA's restrictions.²⁴

In addition, the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act (the GLBA) gives consumers a limited right to "opt out" of certain disclosures by financial institutions to nonaffiliated third parties.²⁵ However, its abundant exceptions arguably all but destroy the protection it purports to provide.

American privacy law is poorly suited to protecting privacy, especially of computerized consumer information. Aside from the FCRA, privacy laws largely fall into three categories: laws protecting personal privacy from invasions by governments, federal or local; the common law tort of invasion of privacy; and statutes and case law that prohibit private parties from obtaining²⁶ or disclosing²⁷ specific types of information. Relevant provisions of the GLBA²⁸ will be described in this last category,²⁹ they impose certain notice requirements on financial institutions who disclose financial data and a limited right for consumers to opt out of some kinds of disclosures.

The Sixth Circuit recently limited the reach of Michigan’s act by concluding that a magazine publisher that used independent third parties to sell subscriptions could not be liable to a customer who had bought a subscription to its publication because the publisher was therefore not “in the business of selling at retail.” *Coulter-Owens v. Among the permitted disclosures are those to CRAs for purposes of payment, so long as the disclosure is limited to the following information: name and address, date of birth, Social Security number, payment history, account number, and name and address of the health care provider. 45 C.F.R. §§ 164.501, 164.506(c)(1). In 2009, Congress expanded the categories of those subject to HIPAA's anti-disclosure requirements in the Health Information Technology for Economic and Clinical Health Act (the HITECH Act). Pub. L. 18 {18} Family Educational Rights & Privacy Act of 1974, 20 U.S.C. § 1232g.

19 {19} Federal law prohibits firms and persons who regularly prepare income tax returns for others from disclosing personal tax information or using it for other purposes, with a few exceptions. 26 U.S.C. § 7216. The Privacy Act of 1974, 5 U.S.C. § 552a, requires all government agencies, whether federal, state, or local, that request Social Security numbers to provide a disclosure statement that explains whether the consumer is required to provide the number, how it will be used, and under what statutory authority the agency is requesting the number. The Act provides that a consumer cannot be denied a benefit for refusing to provide the number unless the number is required by federal law (or the disclosure is to an agency that had been using Social Security numbers prior to enactment of the Privacy Act). Although usually a consumer is not compelled to disclose her Social Security number to a private business, no federal law prohibits them from asking for it or from refusing to do business with a consumer who refuses to provide it.
